THE newly-refurbished Clapton Library has been officially reopened, with help from performance poet John Hegley.

He joined the Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, who unveiled a commemorative plaque and cut a cake to celebrate the completion of the £3million project. The event on 22 February marked the beginning of a new chapter for the Arts and Crafts style building, which has survived two world wars. The reopening means there are now eight libraries in the borough, with a brand new library and archive set to be built as part of the Dalston Square development. For more pictures from the reopening event see pages 8&9

FIFTH TAX FREEZE

By James Willsher

COUNCIL Tax has been frozen for a record-breaking fifth time in a row, as part of Hackney's budget for the new financial year.

Hackney is the only local authority in the country to have achieved a five year freeze. The move was proposed last October by the Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, and agreed at a meeting of full Council on 3 March. The 2010/11 financial year, which starts in April, will see the Council spend £72million on services for children and young people, such as youth clubs and care for disabled children. A total of £66million is to be spent on cleaner streets and better roads, including maintaining nearly 11,000 street lights, and sweeping 296 miles of roads daily.

Mayor Pipe said: "The Council is on the side of residents through difficult economic times. I know that the past year has been difficult for many residents due to the economic climate, and I hope that by keeping the Council Tax down we can help to make life a little easier. We are the only authority in the country to be freezing Council Tax for five years in a row, and it has been achieved alongside record investment in services."

This is backed up by the District Auditor, a Government financial watchdog, which said in a report that 'Hackney has one of the strongest balance sheets in London'.

During the past five years, the Council has made over £40million in efficiency savings; funds which are being reinvested in services that matter most to local people. These savings are the highest in London and the third highest in the country, and have come from sources including improvements to Council Tax and Housing Rent collection rates, benefits processing, and working practices.

Rose Hayes, Chair of Age Concern Hackney, said: "We are pleased the Council has been able to keep a five year freeze on Council Tax, while finding extra money for much needed services like our Coldline project, which helps older people struggling with fuel poverty."

John Denham MP, Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, added: "This shows authorities can balance efficiency with fairness, keeping tax low, and cutting waste whilst at the same time investing in the services that matter to local people."

Message from the Mayor

Council is in a strong financial position

COUNCIL spending has been high on the agenda of the national and local media this week as journalists speculated about the possible effects of the national budget deficit on local authorities. There have been reports of potential jobs losses at a national level, and locally some have even claimed that Hackney Council's budget is facing a £40million black hole and spending cuts in key areas.

We know there are challenges ahead for all councils, but stories like this are unnecessarily alarming to Hackney residents who rely on local services. I wanted to take this opportunity to reassure you that the budget that has just been passed by Hackney Council for the next financial year is again one without any cuts to frontline services. In fact, on top of the Council Tax freeze, there has been considerable extra investment in many key service areas, including libraries, and increased service provision in care for residents in need of support at home, such as older people and young adults with learning disabilities.

There is no doubt the coming years will be tougher for public service spending. That is why councils like Hackney need to concentrate on becoming more efficient and finding ways to provide the same or better services for less money. In Hackney over the past five years, we have made the highest efficiency savings of any London borough and reinvested those savings in better libraries, leisure centres, youth clubs, recycling, street cleaning, social care and other services.

Council Tax is only a small part of the money that the Council spends on your behalf, most of it comes from Government grants. If these are frozen or decreased in coming years, residents should be assured that Hackney Council's finances are in a strong position to weather the storms ahead and that providing high-quality, value for money services will remain our priority.

Residents write and e-mail me about all sorts of issues, but rarely about the authority's budget. If anyone has been unnecessarily alarmed by stories they've heard about the budget and services, I would welcome people contacting me for more information at: mayor@hackney.gov.uk, or writing to me at the Town Hall.

DEBT advice, CV workshops, massages and plants were all on offer to around 1,500 residents who came to a Hackney Homes Open day at Ocean in Mare Street.

Parents came with children, young people with mates, and older people with neighbours. They came with questions and comments, and were able to speak to Hackney Homes' staff face-to-face, as well as write down suggestions for improving services. One of the most popular areas on the day was a 'grow your own food' stand, where estate gardeners were equipping residents with the tools and advice to start their own community garden. More than 1,500 herb plants were given out. A fluffy loan shark and a giant Police Community Support Officer were on hand at stalls offering advice about how to manage debt and stay safe. There was also advice on fire safety, home insurance, saving energy, and domestic violence, as well as a range of fun activities for young people. Charlotte Graves, Chief Executive of Hackney Homes, said: "We are pleased that so many residents enjoyed the day and we will continue to use opportunities like this to listen and act on what residents tell us." Cllr Karen Alcock, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, added: "It was important to see so many residents coming along to find out more about services available to them. The Council works in partnership with Hackney Homes and is committed to providing high quality housing and services for residents."

Rainbow pledge

By
Ruth Garland

RESIDENTS, police, students and local politicians all signed a rainbow banner as part of Hackney and Tower Hamlets' celebration of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Trans (LGBT) History Month.

The event at St Leonard's Church, Shoreditch, on 25

February marked a commitment from the two boroughs to work together to reduce homophobic violence along their joint border of Hackney Road.

Hosted by Rev Paul Turp, there were moving performances and speeches from Stoke Newington School pupils, led by music teacher Elly Barnes.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "East London is a place that everyone can make their home and be treated with dignity and respect. We've got to ensure that no attacks on individual communities go unchallenged."

Deputy Leader of Tower Hamlets, Cllr Josh Peck, added: "As two boroughs, we are close not just geographically, but in terms of our communities and our outlook."

This is the first time the two boroughs have joined up to put on a series of LGBT History Month events. This year's theme was museums, libraries and the arts and this was reflected in the range of exhibitions, screenings and talks. Events included an evening of love poems from LGBT writers; and an exhibition about masks and identity at Hackney Museum. While the Walk Proud LGBT History Project collected memories of LGBT life in Hackney, which often go unrecorded in archives and museums.

Young people on the Boundary Estate, E2, were also invited to join workshops on the Tower Hamlets' anti hate crime bus, to help them understand what it's like to be a victim and be more tolerant of other social groups. The bus will be at Ravenscroft Park every Wed and Sat until 31 March.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Empire public meeting

RESIDENTS are reminded there will be a public meeting about future plans for the Hackney Empire on 11 March. It will be an opportunity to ask questions of a panel of the Empire's senior staff and Board of Trustees, plus officers from the Arts Council and Hackney Council. It takes place in the Empire's main auditorium, Mare Street, E8, from 6.30-8pm. If people can't attend, e-mail suggested questions to: info@hackneyempire.co.uk

Money for young athletes

GRASSROOTS sporting talent could benefit from a cash boost in the latest round of Hackney Youth Sports Fund awards.

Successful applicants will receive money for equipment and training.

Young sportspeople, community clubs, and coaches holding a national governing body qualification but aiming for a higher level can all apply. The fund was set up in 2007, after the Council received a £300,000 out of court settlement from Nike for the firm's unauthorised use of the Hackney logo on its clothing (above). Applications close on 1 April. For info call: 020 8356 4897; or, e-mail: darren.english@hackney.gov.uk

Council opposes sale of homes

CROWN Estate proposals to sell off homes in Hackney were formally opposed at a Council meeting on 3 March. Following a statement by Mayor Jules Pipe against the sale, a motion by Victoria ward councillors – to fight the sale of over 1,000 homes on estates across London, including Victoria Park – was passed unanimously.

The Crown Estate, which manages Royal land and buildings, is consulting with residents, but has not yet stated if the homes would be sold to a private or Registered Social Landlord, whether tenancies would remain secure, or if affordable and keyworker housing will be kept.

Mayor Pipe said: "Tenants of these homes include people who have lived there for over 60 years, young families and key workers. We'll be doing everything we can to secure continued keyworker and affordable housing, and to protect current tenants' rights."

A Crown Estate spokesman said: "No decision will be made until the consultation closes. Nobody will lose their home under this proposal including those on assured shorthold tenancies, which are protected by law."

Church Street two-way traffic

A ONE-WAY traffic diversion on Stoke Newington Church Street is due to be removed on 12 March as new pavements and road surfacing is completed. Major work to regenerate the area along Church Street started last September following the Council's consultation with residents and businesses. Footway works, at the end of the road between Wilmer Place and the High Street, will continue without the need for a diversion, and are expected to be completed in April. # Investing £1 million in a bustling future

Miranda Yates

THE Council is investing £1million in major improvements to one of the borough's best-loved markets.

Work to transform Ridley Road Market is set to run from the end of April to November. The market will remain open for business during the redevelopment.

The aim is to make the area more welcoming for regular customers, as well as draw in new visitors, and improve conditions for the traders who work there.

Using the results of a consultation carried out last year with traders, shopkeepers, residents and shoppers, the Council has

A rich and varied history

Ridley Road Market has a history as varied and colourful as the goods on sale. Before the Regulation of Street Markets Act in 1927, stallholders would wait for a policeman to blow a whistle, then jostle for the best pitches. In the 1930s, opponents of fascism had regular fights with Nazi Blackshirts, who held meetings at the Kingsland Road end of what was then mainly a Jewish market. Ridley Road survived the Blitz during the Second World War; a 1960s threat to build a motorway through it; and 1970s proposals for a railway station in the middle of the road. Today it mirrors Hackney's diverse population with stalls full of Turkish, Jewish, Asian, African, Caribbean and local goods of all sorts, from exotic fruit and veg to clothes and household wares.

drawn up a 'to do list' of improvements that will be made to the market.

People said they wanted to be able to get around the busy market more easily, so footpaths are being widened and more space is being made between stalls.

Residents also asked the Council to provide better, brighter lighting, while traders wanted extra power for their stalls.

Both residents and businesses wanted a cleaner and greener market, so improved recycling facilities will be provided, as well as more safe places to park bikes.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Ridley Road Market remains one of the best places to bag a fruit and veg bargain in Hackney, with quality foods from around the world, as well as fashions for sale.

"It's a pleasure to be able to announce the Council is investing in improving the experience shoppers and business people will have as they move around the market. These improvements will be visible and create a better environment for everyone who uses the market."

Making trade fair

By
Ruth Garland

CHILDREN from inner London's first Fairtrade primary school greeted a tea producer from southern India with a barrage of eager questions.

On the first day of Fairtrade Fortnight, which ran from 22 February to 7 March, Jubilee Primary pupils met Vinay Devaiah, a Fairtrade producer from Thiashola Tea Plantation.

He spoke to the children about what a difference Fairtrade makes to the lives of workers on the plantation.

Vinay said: "We take some of the premium from Fairtrade and use it to fund education, which is expensive in India.

"The scheme has been a very big hit.

"The nearest hospital is two and a half hours' drive, so we have also used the premium to bring specialist doctors in every one or two months."

Pupils, from the Upper Clapton school, were visiting an exhibition at Hackney Central Library to mark Fairtrade Fortnight.

Teacher Melissa Davies Oliveck said the children had worked hard to achieve their official recognition from the Fairtrade Foundation. She added: "They've done assemblies, they take part in a weekly Fairtrade group, and they run a stall after school. They've also written to the people who provide the school uniform to see if they can use Fairtrade cotton."

The theme for this year's

"We take some of the premium from Fairtrade and use it to fund education"

Fairtrade Fortnight was 'The Big Swap', encouraging people to switch from their usual food, drink or clothing to Fairtrade products.

Hackney became a Fairtrade borough in May 2008, following a two-year campaign masterminded by the Hackney Fairtrade Group – a partnership of more than 60 residents, business people and councillors.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Matalan murder conviction

Victim Jamie Simpson

A TEENAGER who stabbed Matalan store manager, Jamie Simpson, during a failed robbery, has been found guilty of murder. Mr Simpson was attacked on 22 March 2008 as he cashed up after the Dalston Kingsland store closed. The 33-year-old, from Herne Hill, South London, was stabbed in the neck and back.

Kobina Essel, 19, from East London was convicted of murder at the Old Bailey on 22 February. Simeon Jumah, 25, of Eighth Avenue, E12; Anthony Maina, 20, of no fixed address; and a 17-year-old youth, who cannot be named for legal reasons, were convicted of manslaughter. Duane Owusu, 20, of no fixed address; Jamal Chambers, 18, of Broomfield Street, E14; and Roy Williams, 31, of Regan House, N18 were also convicted of conspiracy to rob.

The court heard the group planned to rob the store over the Easter weekend hoping to get up to £30,000. Jamie's parents Lorna, 54, and Lambert Simpson, 57, were in court as the verdicts came through. Lorna said: "No sentence can provide justice for the sickening betrayal we've encountered at the hands of his killers."

Down with it

A HOMEOWNER who demolished his house to build a much larger property without planning permission, now faces having to knock it down after the Council issued an enforcement notice.

40 Lingwood Road

Jacob Dreyfuss, of 40 Lingwood Road, E5, appealed, but this was dismissed by the Planning Inspector on the grounds the development 'harms' the area's character and is an 'unacceptable loss of privacy' for neighbours. Mr Dreyfuss now has 12 months to comply with the notice. If he fails to do so, the Council could prosecute him. In 2001, Mr Dreyfuss successfully applied to extend the rear of his two-storey property. But instead, the house was knocked down to create a three-storey house with cellar. Mr Dreyfuss must now adapt and rebuild the house in line with planning requirements or face it being demolished.

100-plus homes proposed

OVER 100 new homes for social renting are proposed for Ottaway Court and Rendlesham House in E5, and Bridport House in Colville Estate, N1.

The Council has been working with residents to draw up the regeneration proposals, including family homes with gardens and balconies; and open spaces.

They form part of a wider programme to build new social rented homes on Hackney estates, which has received £16million in Government funding since September 2009. Bridport House tenants are being re-housed. The Ottaway Court and Rendlesham House sites are already cleared.

The Council's planning sub-committee is set to decide on the proposals on 10 March.

Abandoned dogs are found by the Council's Animal Warden (above) or reported by residents. Dogs loose in playgrounds or in the way of traffic are given priority. This Japanese Akita's owner could not be found and he was sent to Battersea Dogs Home after seven days in Hackney's kennels

A BOROUGH-WIDE task force is being developed by the Council to promote responsible dog ownership in Hackney.

The partnership is set to include The Learning Trust, registered social landlords, animal welfare agencies and Hackney police.

It will aim to support residents who need help learning how to keep their dog on best behaviour, and take action against those who allow them to become a nuisance or a danger.

Of the 111 dogs abandoned in Hackney from April to December last year, 82 were 'status dogs' – breeds such as Staffordshire Bull Terriers and Rottweilers.

In response to a growing London-wide problem with potentially dangerous breeds that are not looked after properly, the Met Police has also set up a 'status dog unit'. Since April 2009, 34 dogs, mostly bull breeds have been seized by the Hackney unit, and taken to police kennels.

“The Council will be looking to consult with residents about by laws to help promote responsible dog ownership”

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “Status dogs when badly handled are intimidating. That's why tackling the problems posed by a surge in status dog ownership is absolutely crucial.

“We believe that the solutions must lie in an approach that offers support in responsible dog ownership, as well as punitive measures for residents whose dogs are allowed to become a threat to others.

“This summer, the Council wants to consult residents on setting up a task force and by-laws to promote responsible dog ownership.”

Know your place

ONE important way to be a responsible dog owner is to join a dog training course. Even if a dog is no longer a puppy, it's not too late. With funding from the Shoreditch Park Users Group, Roland Ward, a trainer with 20 years' experience, has been teaching dogs and owners good behaviour.

He said: “My job is to teach the owner and the dog to understand each other so that they can work together.

“A dog should be a pleasure to own and not a nuisance to others. Once a dog knows where it stands, you can work with it. Dog training is hard work and persistence is crucial.”

The Council hopes to be able to offer more courses for dogs and owners soon.

Lost and found

STRAYS picked up in Hackney are taken to kennels at Millfields Road.

Dogs are fed and watered by the Animal Warden, who will also check for injuries and look for a tag or micro chip that could identify it. Having a dog in a public place without a collar and ID tag, not only makes it harder for the warden to reunite a lost dog with its owner, it can lead to a fine of up to £5,000.

Dogs must still wear a tag even if they're micro-chipped. If the warden is unable to find a stray's owner within seven days, they will contact Battersea Dogs Home, which has greater space and is able to take in more animals.

Any resident whose dog goes missing should also contact councils in neighbouring boroughs, in case it has strayed across the border.

The Council can help with a range of dog-related issues including:

- Discounted micro-chipping
- Fouling
- Nuisance noise or smells
- Licenses for animal establishments

What is the law on 'dangerous dogs'?

THE Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 is the most well-known law on dog ownership in the UK. It bans the breeding and sale or exchange of four types of dog – pit bull terriers, Japanese Tosas, Dogo Argentinos, and Fila Brasileiros. Cross-breeds of these dogs are also banned, plus any other dogs 'appearing to be bred for fighting'. Owners of illegal dogs face having their pet seized by police, appearing in court, and the animal being destroyed. Under the Act, any type of dog classed as 'dangerously out of control in a public place' can also be destroyed. The owner can be fined and imprisoned for up to six months. If a dog injures someone, the owner can be jailed for up to two years.

Clapton Library now has 15 computers with free Internet access, plus another eight machines in the children's library

A RENOVATED Clapton Library officially reopened its doors in style with a celebratory launch event.

Library users, staff and invited guests from the local community joined Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, on 22 February as he unveiled a plaque marking the reopening, followed by entertainment from performance poet and musician John Hegley.

Guests got a chance to look around the library, which the Council has spent £3million renovating and extending.

Improvements include a new area for private study, a meeting room for community use, quiet reading areas, and better facilities for disabled users, such as a new lift and an audio scanner which reads books aloud.

There is also a greater range of books, CDs and DVDs on offer, which users can issue and return themselves using self-service technology.

Mayor Pipe said: "I am very pleased with the results of the Clapton Library refurbishment.

"The library has been in the community for almost 100 years and we were determined that it should offer the best service possible in a high quality environment to Hackney's residents today.

"I hope it will continue to be used as a hub for the local community for another 100 years."

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

Dame Tanni Grey-Thompson, Britain's most successful disabled athlete, now a committed activist for change

Racing towards equality

By
Paul Knipe

DAME Tanni Grey-Thompson is Britain's most successful disabled athlete. She won bronze at the Seoul Paralympic Games in 1988 and went on to win 11 gold and four silver Paralympic medals. Between 1992 and 2002 she also won the London Marathon six times.

Since retiring in 2004, she has been busier than ever as a TV pundit, international ambassador for sport and activist for disabled rights.

She moved to Hackney last year. "After I retired from athletics, I spent two years living in hotels – the most depressing thing. So I got a flat. I settled on Hackney because it is a good place to be. I think it's great living here. And of course Hackney is a host borough for the 2012 Games," she said.

“The Paralympics is a huge opportunity for London, and we can grab it to make change”

Dame Tanni eagerly anticipates the benefits the Games will bring.

"I sit on a few committees and I'm involved with the diversity and inclusion group, which looks at how we employ people. Local people can apply for jobs, or volunteer, and businesses can benefit," she said.

And there are big opportunities for disabled people, as London 2012 promises to be the most accessible and inclusive Games yet. London was the first city to bid for the Olympics and Paralympics together, and now it's the first host to have a joint organising committee.

With increased support, sponsorship and media coverage, Paralympians will be able to compete on the same stage as their Olympic team mates. Dame Tanni said: "It's a massive step forwards. The Paralympics is a huge opportunity for London and we can grab it to make change. Hopefully it will get people thinking differently."

Although stigma around disability is less now than it was, there is more to do to achieve equality.

As a young athlete Dame Tanni regularly experienced discrimination, but her determination taught her not to tolerate it.

"People asked me if I had to train to be a Paralympian," she recalls.

"Yep, I told them, 15 times a week, 52 weeks a year."

Things are different now, but not for many others. She said: "The reality is that if you're disabled you're likely to experience discrimination.

"Disabled people can have low expectations due to the environment they've grown up in.

"This is where the Games can change things."

As both inspirational athlete and committed activist, Dame Tanni has raised the profile of disabled sports. She feels it's only a matter of time before disabled and non-disabled athletes achieve equal recognition. And this may well be London 2012.

All your recycling questions answered

Q: Now that spring is on the way, I'd like to spend more time looking after my garden. I know I can dispose of my garden waste through the Council's Brown Bin service. Can you tell me what I can and can't put out for collection?

A: Garden waste from Brown Bin collections is recycled and turned into compost for the borough's parks and green spaces. You can put hedge clippings, plants, flowers, grass, leaves and branches out for collection. You can't recycle soil, stones and rubble, logs and large branches. Food waste and anything else not usually found in a garden such as paper, pet waste, DIY wood or glass are also not suitable for this service.

Bins that are too heavy, overflowing, contaminated with materials not collected, or contain garden waste in plastic bags, will not be emptied by the collection crew. For more info on how you can use this service, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/brown\_bin

A young resident gets some tips from a stall at Tesco in Morning Lane

Waste not ...

By
Marcel Reinard

RESIDENTS can pick up tips on cutting food waste from stalls popping up around the borough.

KEY FACT

The average household in Hackney wastes £50 a month on food waste

Part of the nationwide Love Food Hate Waste (LFHW) campaign, the stalls offer practical information to help people make the most of the food they are buying, and waste less of it.

Residents can also pick up a free food waste rescue pack, which includes a spaghetti measurer to help with portion control, and a Food Lovers cookbook packed with recipes that can help use up leftovers.

Sofia, 25, from Dalston, visited a stall at Kingsland

Shopping Centre in January. She said: "The stall gave me loads of simple ideas to reduce the amount of food I throw away."

"My free spaghetti measurer is great. I feel better now I'm cooking the right amount of pasta and not creating lots of waste."

The stalls are part of the North London Waste Authority's (NLWA) contribution to the campaign, which began last July and ends this month. So far 110 events have taken place in Hackney and the six other boroughs in which the NLWA arranges

"I feel better now I'm cooking the right amount of pasta and not creating lots of waste"

the transport and disposal of waste. Thousands of people are contributing to the NLWA's aim to divert 5,630 tonnes of food waste from landfill during this period.

MORE INFO

Stalls will be held from 11am-2pm, on 8 March at Hackney Service Centre, E8; and on 12 March, at Stoke Newington Library, N16

Jobs in the great outdoors

RESIDENTS are invited to apply for new jobs keeping Hackney's estates clean and green.

Hackney Homes, which manages the borough's Council housing, is recruiting gardeners and cleaners, as well as a horticultural development officer. Gardening duties will include cutting grass, pruning shrubs, planting flower beds, and general maintenance. Staff will also support residents with communal gardens.

Cleaners will mop and sweep communal areas, as well as pick up litter from lawn areas, footpaths and roadways.

The development officer role will include managing tree maintenance, as well as Hackney's entry in the annual London in Bloom competition.

Christophe Tabi, Hackney Homes Interim Head of Estate Environment Services, said: "Just walking through the estates in Hackney, you can see that we are making massive improvements to the environment.

"We want to continue these improvements and that is why we are boosting our workforce."

RECYCLING on the go will be easier than ever before from next month, when 60 new litter bins are due to be trialled in Hackney.

“We are committed to making it as simple as possible for our residents to recycle away from home”

The new units, which collect recyclables at one end and litter at the other, allow passers-by to recycle their newspapers, drinks cans, cartons, glass and plastic bottles, at the same time as disposing of general waste.

The bins will be tested out in Hackney Central, Stoke Newington and Shoreditch, with the intention of eventually providing bins in other town centres around the borough.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “We are committed to

making it as simple as possible for our residents to recycle away from the home. We know that over half the rubbish that goes into our litter bins is recyclable, so we hope that by providing these new bins we can support residents to keep as much waste as possible away from landfill sites.”

Climbing greenery

IT'S not just budding mountaineers who will be reaching new heights at the Castle Climbing Centre, N16, this spring. Community-led vegetable box supplier, Growing Communities, has teamed up with the Green Lanes centre to launch a new growing site in its grounds. Ida Fabrizio and Sophie Verhagen, who graduated from Growing Communities' urban apprenticeship scheme last year, are preparing the site for the new raised beds which will be certified by the Soil Association, and used to grow a wide variety of organic salad leaves. Vegetable box scheme co-ordinator, Nicki East, said: “We're really excited about our new micro-site, we've also started a new community pick-up point at the Castle which means that over the next couple of years, box scheme members will be able to see their salad leaves being grown when they come to collect their bags.” For details, pick-up times and locations, visit: www.growingcommunities.org

'A remarkable success story'

By
Marcel Reinard

Teaching professionals who have helped make Hackney's schools the most improved in the country were celebrated at The Learning Trust Educators' Awards 2010.

Teachers, support staff, governors and childcare workers were recognised at the biennial event on 1 March.

Stormont House's Deputy Headteacher, Beryl Grosvenor, who received a lifetime achievement award was commended as 'exceptional' by judges. Praising the team at the E5 school, she said: "They are so intuitive, so committed and they work tirelessly for the promotion of children. I couldn't do anything without them."

Childcare worker of the year,
Angela How, from Landfield
Community Hall

Clapton Girls' Technology College's Cheryl Day – the longest serving secondary headteacher in Hackney – won a leadership accolade. She said: "The secret of a successful school is to have the right combination of wonderful students and committed staff."

The main ingredient is the people who work for the benefit of all the young people here

Jessika Chaplain, also from Clapton Girls', was named outstanding new teacher. She said: "The stereotype of Hackney is that this is a really difficult borough, but when I looked at the schools, I saw they were doing really well."

Primary leadership winner, Randal Cremer's Valerie Serette-Figaro, said. "At first I thought, why would they nominate me? But now I look at what we've achieved and I can understand it. Without my team, this definitely wouldn't have happened."

The event was hosted by BBC London News arts correspondent Brenda Emmanus at Tower Hotel, E1. Those handing out awards included Schools Minister Iain Wright.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "These awards are an excellent tribute to the dedication and hard work of teaching staff throughout the borough. It is their commitment and expertise that has helped Hackney achieve record breaking results this year and I'd like to thank them all."

Clockwise from above: Akuak, Esja and Regina take advantage of the activities on offer during the HFBU fun day

Fun day to air views

By
Marcel Reinard

MORE than 100 people attended an annual party for children with disabilities at St John-at-Hackney church hall.

The event, on 17 February, was organised by local charity Hackney Family Backup (HFBU). The day of fun featured a chance to try out music, circus skills, face painting and arts and crafts.

Deborah Walsh, from HFBU, said: "It can be difficult for children with challenging behaviour at general fun days, as they may need one-to-one support.

"But the feedback we received at our annual party showed parents appreciated its accessibility. Children made friends, as did parents who formed friendships with other parents and foster parents who provide respite care for families."

HFBU also took the opportunity to consult with parents and children during the event, to discover their views, experiences and preferences when it comes to playing and socialising.

Deborah added: "We found that some parents are still worried about the future of their children.

"What was encouraging was that we found some older children with challenging behaviour would look after and protect some of the younger ones."

Positive leaps

A GROUP of girls have put on an acrobatics show, testing their ideals of body image in the process.

The troupe of 20 girls, aged eight to 12, all live in social housing in Hackney and Islington.

They performed human pyramids and other feats of acrobatics during a performance at the Union Chapel, N1, on 19 February.

Organisers Mimbre, worked with the young people for 10 weeks, discussing the capabilities of the human body, as well as providing acrobatic training. There were also joint sessions with mothers or carers.

Mimbre's Joint Artistic Director, Lina Johansson, said it was 'an ideal way to promote positive ideas of body image'.

Dubbed 'Strong and Flying', the project was funded by the Big Lottery Fund; ROSA, the UK fund for women and girls; Southern Housing Group; and Activate.

£6m centre to 'improve access'

A NEW £6million healthcare centre serving up to 70,000 residents is on the way, with a lease signed to build and maintain it.

Construction is due to begin this month on the four-storey South East Primary Care Resource Centre, on the old Hackney hospital site in Kenworthy Road, E9.

Due to open in spring 2011, it will house dentistry services, space for two GP practices, a physiotherapy gym and bookable consulting space for other community-based services.

The centre is a joint venture between the private and public sector to improve people's access to high-quality care close to home. It will be built by East London Lift Co, on land provided by NHS City and Hackney. The news follows the Council's recent decision to grant planning permission to develop a South West Primary Care Resource Centre on the site of St Leonard's Hospital, Hoxton.

Both centres are part of a wider strategy called 'Care Closer to Home'. It aims to offer four one-stop places where residents can access a wide range of services, including an urgent care centre, open 12 hours a day, seven days a week.

Steve Gilvin, Director of Primary Care Commissioning at NHS City and Hackney, said: "This strategy was developed following research and extensive dialogue with the local public. It's about bringing care back into the community and improving access to a key range of health services all in one-place, at extended opening times."

The Festival The Pit, Barbican, until 13 March

By Louise Hudson

THIS is a brilliantly unique, fun and quirky little treat from the Lone Theatre Company. Set in small town Australia around an annual whale watching festival, the story focuses on the lives of two ordinary people who met there the previous year.

This is no ordinary play however, and the clever and charming production includes song, dance and direct dialogue to the audience. In giving this nod to the Victorian music hall style, The Festival evokes the atmosphere of a bygone era and a sense of nostalgia throughout a thoroughly modern tale of the here and now. Although tinged with sadness, the general playfulness and, at times, plain silliness makes the play wonderfully heart warming and uplifting.

The Festival is one episode of The Catastrophe Trilogy, the Lone Theatre Company's tongue in cheek study of the astounding capability of the human spirit to come up fighting in even the most challenging of times.

All three plays in the trilogy are showing now at the Barbican until 13 March. Beautifully produced to be enjoyed individually or in sequence, special Saturday performance are also running where all three can be seen back to back.

Alto saxophonist Rudresh Mahanthappa and pianist Vijay Iyer

A pair clearly in tune

By Naomi Ocansey

Vijay Iyer/Rudresh Mahanthappa at The Vortex, Gillet Square, 3 March

PIANIST Vijay Iyer and alto saxophonist Rudresh Mahanthappa are long-time collaborators bringing elements of cathartic South Indian music into contemporary free-jazz sensibilities. Both are accomplished musicians in their own right and their set allowed each to shine in more detail than that usually seen from a duo. Without drums or bass to cushion them, the sound is dark with low notes and long pauses. But the occasional break out of the sax gives opportunity for some happier, more playful sounds. However, unfortunately there were not enough of those for me. Obviously a very distinctive sound and very much for the keen jazz goer, the two were clearly in tune with each other. Where each took a turn to demonstrate their solo capabilities, the other provided rhythmic support. At other times, their playing diverged down separate paths, almost lost from one another with the pathway of rhythms and tempos eventually bringing them back onto the same path.

The Vortex, located in Dalston Culture House, offers a contemporary exterior with a cosy and dimly lit interior, perfect for those jazz fuelled evenings, offering musicians the opportunity to perform in a well-respected venue.

Many more artists of all styles and genre are to appear during the month and it is well worth a visit. If in doubt, contact General Josh on the door who was more than happy to provide a recommendation for the novice jazz fan. Info: 020 7254 4097; or visit: www.vortexjazz.co.uk

REVIEW

Hapless Heidegger

By Kate Gibney

Heidegger's Shadow, The Courtyard Theatre, N1, until 21 March, 7.30pm

WHO goes to see a play about Heidegger? A glance around as I wait for the lights to go down reveals several rows of serious faces, some students chuckling about their course, and a little girl wearing a sequined frock. After the show begins, someone, perhaps a philosophy buff, utters intermittent barks of laughter.

I freely admit that I know little about Heidegger's work or personal life. I know that he wrote Being and Time, in which he set about achieving the destruction of the philosophical tradition; that he believed that to grasp what it means to be human, one must constantly project one's life onto ever approaching death; that he had extramarital affairs with Jewish women; and that he was a member of the National Socialist Party from 1933-45, publicly supporting Hitler. My error was to expect that this production might offer some insight into his thoughts and actions. Condensing the complicated personal life of a man famous for a work of legendary difficulty into two hours was never going to be easy. But it was curious that the play's authors have attacked this task by creating a hapless, bumbling Heidegger. Faced with a question from his mistress, wife, a fellow philosopher, or his 'shadow' (a shaven headed Nazi in an armband who follows Heidegger around, goading him), he blusters and flaps. In David Cherrill and Carol Jacobs' script, Heidegger's wife openly expresses a dislike for Jews, which, from the outset, she relates to their feminine wiles. His Jewish mistress Hannah Arendt offers scant reason for why she championed Heidegger's work after fleeing persecution.

This was a well-received, energetic performance, and a good starting point for those seeking an introduction to Heidegger. But perhaps not for those looking for explanations.

Youth Parliament election

EIGHT young people stood for election to become a Deputy Member of Hackney's Youth Parliament (DMYP) last month.

The candidates, aged 11 to 19, were selected from Hackney's four youth Neighbourhood Forums and contested two DMYP places. They had earlier attended a training day organised by the Council's Youth Participation Team, where they discussed the UK Youth Parliament's purpose, members' roles, and how they could be involved. They then wrote a manifesto explaining what they hoped to achieve for Hackney youth and how they aimed to do this. Voting was open to forum members. A formal counting process took place at Hackney Town Hall on 19 February. The two candidates elected were siblings Reanne Anthony-Brown, 15, and Kieran Anthony-Brown, 12. Reanne said: "It's great to be sharing this experience with my younger brother. Everyone really did well and worked hard to make great manifestoes. We'd both like to thank the young people who voted for us, and we can't wait to get started."

Showing love raises £500 for charity

By Gracia Douglas

MORE than 200 young people attended a Valentine's event at Stoke Newington Town Hall that raised money for charity.

Organised by local dance group Luminous, with support from the Council's Youth Service, 'We Show Love' featured performances and presentations on a night that raised over £500 for Macmillan Cancer Support. 'Show Love Life Style Concept' supported the event with a fashion show, and performances.

Young volunteers helped as stewards, stagehands and with refreshments, ensuring the event flowed as smoothly as possible.

Attendees were judged on their outfits, with Kyron Nestor, 15, and Dillia Ofori-Numah, 16, the proud winners of the best-dressed male and female competitions.

The event was patrolled by eight street pastors, Anwar Bourazza, from Ascension Trust & Street Pastors Co-ordinator, Hackney & Southwark, said: "The young people were all pleasant. The police, security and Hackney staff all did an excellent job, and it was encouraging to see everyone working together making the evening enjoyable."

Following on from 'We Show Love', dancer Wacky Rymel will be holding a free workshop in Hackney later this month.

Donations will help raise more funds for Macmillan Cancer Support.

By Sally England,
Local Studies Librarian

INTERNATIONAL Women's Day was celebrated on 8 March. A timely moment to remember poet, author, essayist, and independent thinker Anna Laetitia Barbauld, who died on 9 March 1825.

In the late 1700s, when politics was regarded as an all-male preserve, readers were often shocked to discover that her reasoned arguments were the work of a woman, and other female writers were encouraged to follow Anna Laetitia's ground-breaking example.

Born Anna Laetitia Aikin in Leicestershire, and brought up in Warrington where her father was a minister and headmaster, she persuaded him to let her learn the classics, modern languages, and other subjects then thought unsuitable for girls.

Her mother worried about this intense liking for study, believing prospective husbands would be put off, but in later years was immensely proud of her daughter.

Anna Laetitia was an attractive woman according to the opinion of one of her many suitors. Archibald Hamilton Rowan described her as: 'possessed of great beauty, distinct traces of which she retained to the latest of her life. Her person was slender, her complexion exquisitely fair with the bloom of perfect health; her features regular and elegant, and her dark blue eyes beamed with the light of wit and fancy.'

Eventually Anna Laetitia married a non-conformist minister, Rochemont Barbauld, and moved with him to Suffolk where they spent over a decade running a dissenting academy at Palgrave, which offered an alternative to the strict discipline of traditional schools.

After some years living in Hampstead, they moved to Stoke Newington in 1802, when Rochemont became minister of Newington Green Chapel. Anna Laetitia was by then a successful writer and poet, and the author of some of the earliest works written especially for children.

She also published a number of radical political works including the influential poem 'Epistle to William Wilberforce Esq on the Rejection of the Bill for Abolishing the Slave Trade', and the anti-war sermon 'Sins of Government, Sins of the Nation'.

Rochemont suffered increasing bouts of poor mental health, including one episode when he chased his wife around the dining table, armed with a knife. Anna Laetitia escaped by jumping through an open window. Eventually Rochemont drowned himself in the New River and his wife was overcome by grief.

Anna Laetitia published one more poem – 'Eighteen Hundred and Eleven', which criticised British participation in the Napoleonic Wars – but it was so badly received that she never wrote again. Her reputation deteriorated until she was only remembered as a children's author and was eventually all but forgotten.

However, in the late 20th century her work was re-evaluated by feminist literary critics and today Anna Laetitia is highly regarded as an important female writer of her era.

She is buried in the Old St Mary's churchyard, Stoke Newington. A memorial plaque can also be found in Newington Green Chapel.

A large selection of her published works and some personal letters are held by Hackney Archives.

Have your say: on Members' allowances

Hackney Council wishes to recruit three new people to its Independent Remuneration Panel.

The Council, like a number of other councils in London, has its own Independent Remuneration Panel, as part of its drive to promote accountability. The Panel is responsible for considering and determining the level of allowances payable to the members and co-optees. It also keeps under review the operation of the Members' Allowances Scheme.

We are interested in hearing from residents who wish to make a contribution to the quality of local democracy. Specific attributes include an ability to analyse and discuss information effectively, combined with a good understanding of the members' roles and responsibilities.

The Panel meets about four times a year.
An allowance is payable to people on the Panel.

Hackney Council is committed to improving services, increasing opportunities for all, and making a safer, cleaner, greener borough. Here we focus on a service that helps to make this possible:

USING LOCAL KNOWLEDGE

Esther Johnson, Landlord Liaison Officer

HACKNEY born and bred, Esther has worked for the Council's Revenue and Benefits team for seven years. Alongside her main role of assisting landlords and agencies with benefit queries, Esther is also a member of the Revenue and Benefits Financial Inclusion Group. This newly-established group is looking at ways it can help residents manage their money better and become more financially included in society.

She said: about showing people there are other options open to them. I hope that through this group we can offer information and advice to those people who really need our help." Esther's strong Hackney roots were a big part of why she chose to be on the group. "Coming from here I know there are a lot of good people in the borough, and if I can do something to help them then I want to be a part of that," she added.

Free debt advice

By
Clare Jefferis

AS the recession continues to bite, more and more people in Hackney are turning to loan sharks, or taking 'pay day loans' to get by.

This year, the Council's benefits team plans to offer advice to residents to deter them from using these services and spiralling further into debt.

Through the Financial Inclusion Group, made up of the Revenue and Benefits team and representatives from the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP), the Council will be providing help and guidance to people who, for whatever reason, are financially excluded from society.

From offering support on how to open a basic bank account, to signposting fee-free cash machines in the borough, and giving alternative options to using loan sharks, the benefits team will be doing all it can to ease people's financial worries.

The Council can signpost residents to fee-free cash machines

A number of events are being planned by the Council to promote this support. This month, the benefits team will co-host a workshop with DWP and JobCentre Plus to help agencies encourage people who are on benefits to get back into work. Debt advice surgeries will also be on offer in the summer.

The Council hopes that by going this extra bit further it can make a difference to those who are struggling during these difficult financial times.

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

Max Ebako, 32, from Hackney, came to Training for Life after more than nine months in and out of temporary jobs.

He was referred to the Hoxton Apprentice by his local Jobcentre, after highlighting the hospitality industry as one of his main interests.

At the moment, Max is learning front of house skills and will progress to training in the kitchen after three months.

"Everyone at Training for Life is really helpful, such a nice team of people," said Max.

"Training for Life has the right answers, they help you build up your confidence and skills. If it wasn't for them I would still be stuck in a job that I disliked."

Max believes his strengths are putting his ideas and opinions across, looking after the customers, and serving a good drink.

He hopes that once his apprenticeship is complete, he can secure a job at the Hoxton Apprentice, and maybe even rise to a managerial position in a few years.

Cod fishcakes with parsley & nutmeg

Serves 4

Preparation time
1 hour

Cooking time
10 mins

Ingredients

- ½ pack flat-leaf parsley, chopped
- 400g fresh Icelandic cod fillet
- 2 large floury potatoes (about 400g) peeled and quartered
- 25g unsalted butter
- Freshly grated nutmeg
- Finely grated zest of 1 lemon
- 4 tbsp plain flour
- ½ tsp cayenne pepper
- 3 tbsp olive oil

Method

- Poach cod in enough simmering water to just cover it for 3-4 minutes until fish starts to flake and skin pulls away easily. Drain, discard skin, and pat fish dry on kitchen paper.

Leave to cool for a few minutes

- Boil potatoes for 10-12 minutes, or until soft. Drain well and mash until smooth. Beat in butter, nutmeg, parsley and lemon zest, flake cod into pieces and stir in, season to taste, and then set aside to cool for 10-15 minutes
- Divide mixture into 8 and shape into ovals. Cover and chill for 30 minutes
- Season flour with cayenne and a pinch of salt. Dip fish cakes in flour until lightly but evenly coated. In a frying pan, heat 3 tablespoons of olive oil. Fry fish cakes (in batches if necessary) for 3-4 minutes on each side until crisp and golden. Drain on kitchen paper
- Arrange on a plate with some lemon wedges, rocket salad and flat-leaf parsley.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.

Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain an NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people.

If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Jeanita Snowdon on: 020 7749 2800.

Better hospitals

THERE is still time to give your views on proposals to improve hospital services in North East London. Consultation has been extended until 22 March. The proposals have been developed by senior clinicians and involved hundreds of staff, patients and members of the public. They include improving accident and emergency services; developing urgent care services; moving complex care onto fewer sites; and separating planned surgery from emergency surgery.

To view the consultation document and take part visit: www.healthfornel.nhs.uk

Documents and questionnaires can also be found at GP surgeries and hospitals, or requested by calling: 0808 2385416.

Getting involved

VOLUNTEERING is a vital part of community life in Hackney.

The Council has been working with voluntary organisations in the borough to draft a strategy to encourage and support volunteering over the next three years. The aim was to find out about volunteers' experiences and what they think needs to happen to get more people involved in the borough.

Residents can have their say about the draft strategy, and whether it can be improved. Take part by 19 March and be in with a chance of winning a £30 Marks & Spencer voucher. To complete the survey visit: www.consultationfinder.com/hackney For more info, call Lola Akindoyin on: 020 8356 3630; or e-mail: lola.akindoyin@hackney.gov.uk

A host for 2012

The London Olympic and Paralympic Games
The update from Hackney with 900 days to go

In summer 2007 we published ‘Hackney: A Host for 2012’. It set out my agenda for what we as a council seek to gain for Hackney residents from hosting the Olympic and Paralympic Games in 2012.

Those priorities remain the same. They are: better public transport; jobs for local people; work for local businesses; new and improved sports facilities; a better environment; more participation in sport; culture and the arts; and promotion of our borough as a destination for work, living and investment.

This publication is a snapshot of what we have achieved in the last two years as well as future ambitions. It gives an idea of the benefits from 2012 we are getting now. For a full update please visit www.hackney.gov.uk/olympics where you will find a report on our work.

There have also been major challenges. The recession led to the loss of private investment funding for the International Broadcast Centre and Main Press Centre which for a period of time threatened not only whether they would be permanent developments but if they would be located in Hackney Wick at all.

Months of hard work followed this and ensured the media centres would be built in Hackney, and that they will provide high quality employment space in legacy.

Mayor of Hackney

Better Public Transport

Better public transport links for residents, businesses and visitors has long been a top priority for Hackney and Mayor Pipe. 2012 has given the borough the opportunity to have high quality rail connections. Hackney campaigned for £200m to be invested in a better train service on the Overground. We also want Hackney to be better connected for bus users, cyclists and pedestrians.

What we said

There will be new longer, modern, properly wheelchair accessible trains with bigger carriages on the North London line, which will triple the capacity of the service. The service will run twice as often as before.

Hackney will have four new stations at Dalston, Haggerston, Hoxton and Shoreditch High Street.

What happened

The first new train went into operation in July 2009 and the whole new fleet will be in operation by December 2010. There is already a 10 minute frequency of trains at rush hour.

All stations have been designed and are being built. They will open this Spring as part of the London Overground orbital network and run to Croydon in 2010.

What’s next

Longer platforms at Homerton and Dalston Kingsland will be completed in 2010. New signalling and longer trains with better carriages will triple capacity. Eventually there will be eight trains an hour serving these stations.

The London Overground orbital network, Dalston – New Cross – Clapham – Willesden – Dalston will open fully in 2012.

Film producer David Puttnam speaking to students on the New Generation London Film, said:

“The media centres will mean that you can make a serious decision to enter into the world of the media. What I think we’ll be able to do is provide you with a basic skill set and the opportunity to improve those skills.”

Local jobs and businesses

The 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games will create thousands of jobs, including 10,000 construction jobs alone. Hackney residents and local businesses need to be in line for these opportunities and the long-term benefits which will exist for years after the Games. Hackney Council is working in various ways to make sure this happens.

What we said

We will make sure local people are properly skilled to take advantage of job opportunities and registered with OnSite Hackney Recruitment Centre to be in line for jobs. As Hackney is a host borough, residents are alerted to 2012-related jobs 48 hours before they are advertised more widely.

We are working with local and national organisations to ensure local businesses can bid for new contracts and register online for upcoming contracts.

What we did

OnSite opened at new premises on Ghent Way. Over 400 people have been placed in jobs through OnSite, 80 with Olympic contractors. Around 1000 people have been given employment support.

Using the opportunities arising from the Olympic and Paralympic Games, Hackney Council held several jobs fairs which have been attended by nearly 5,000 people looking for jobs, training, apprenticeships and volunteering positions.

Ways into Work programme got more than 700 people into work in its first year by visiting them at home and discussing their options.

Over 1,000 local companies have registered with CompeteFor, a free online service that enables businesses to compete for work linked to the 2012 Games.

What’s next

We will continue this approach with retail, hospitality and security industries. Also we are building a partnership with Cisco Systems in communications information technology for trainees in Hackney.

The jobs fair ‘Your Olympics, Your Future, Your Choice’ is now a major annual event supported by over 15 organisations who are proactively looking to recruit and train residents searching for opportunities afforded them before, during and after the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Hackney has secured £5m to further develop the Ways into Work initiative.

Hackney is supporting a consortia of businesses and building its capacity to ensure that it has a realistic chance of winning 2012 Games related work and contracts.

Future Hackney – 2012 and beyond

As a host borough for the 2012 Games, we are seizing this opportunity for Hackney to secure the best legacy possible for our residents, businesses and environment. There are major opportunities for businesses and enterprise, especially with a new neighbourhood in the east of the borough.

What we said

The media centres will be at the heart of the new neighbourhood at Hackney Wick. They will provide a lasting employment legacy, which will contribute to a reduction in local levels of worklessness and to the growth of local enterprise and investment.

We will work with local businesses and potential tenants to ensure high quality employment space.

What we did

Hackney fought hard to make sure that media centres stayed in Hackney Wick as permanent buildings when a partial move was threatened. We also fought for better designs for the buildings. We are now confident that the designs offer the basis for a strong digital, media and creative industry legacy.

Already significant interest has been generated from potential tenants. We have worked with the East London Business Alliance to identify potential space requirements for local creative and media businesses.

What's next

Hackney will work closely with our partners to ensure that, after the Games are finished in the Autumn of 2012, the buildings will be converted so that they can be used by the creative industries and encourage more employment in the borough.

We will support the Olympic Park Legacy Company with a marketing plan that will attract a broad range of IT, media and creative industries to this site.

“With its rich cultural diversity, Hackney is the ideal host borough to lead the Cultural Olympiad. Over the past nine years in Hackney, Arcola Theatre has developed a strong reputation internationally whilst remaining dedicated to the local community in Hackney. With critically acclaimed productions, innovative youth and community programmes and a commitment to becoming the world's first carbon neutral theatre, the Arcola continually works to put Dalston on the map as a culturally rich destination.”

Ben Todd, Arcola Theatre

“Hackney has played an important role in getting the legacy plans to their current state. I look forward to continued close working with the Council over the coming months and years, to transform the Olympic Park into a prosperous and sustainable community for East London.”

Baroness Margaret Ford, Chair, Olympic Park Legacy Company

“The Personal Bests sports programme is a brilliant initiative. Its design means those negative associations with PE lessons are removed. Young people are inspired to be the best they can be, instead of comparing themselves to others. It was great to be at the finals.”

Christine Ohuruogu, Olympic 400m Gold Medallist

Joining in

Our vision of the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games is to give everyone in Hackney the chance to join in this once-in-a-lifetime event.

What we said

Culture and the arts thrive in Hackney, which is why we're the lead host borough for culture. We are working with local groups to ensure their place in the Cultural Olympiad and to create a sustainable cultural festival across the host boroughs which will grow annually.

70,000 volunteers will be needed at Games time. We want to give Hackney residents, including young people the best chance to be in line for volunteering opportunities.

What we did

33 Hackney organisations took part in the five host boroughs' CREATE09 festival, which was seen by 800,000 people and had 200,000 participants. It added £13.5 million to the East London economy.

Over 220 people have graduated from the Personal Best volunteering programme in Hackney. All of these people have now achieved a nationally recognised qualification and are guaranteed an interview to try to become one of the 70,000 official volunteers needed during the 2012 Games.

What's next

As the lead host borough for culture, Hackney will be highly involved in expanding CREATE to become a national festival in 2012. £6 million has already been raised to support this work which will see major outdoor cultural events in five UK regions as well as the five host boroughs.

Personal Best graduates are all ages and from many backgrounds. Hackney had the highest number of graduates in London from the most recent course and we are determined to continue this trend. Hackney aims to get over 400 graduates from the Personal Best programme. We will also start a volunteer programme preparing Hackney to be a host for 2012.

“I volunteered as a steward at the Paralympic Handover which was very special and close to my heart because I'm disabled. It celebrated people's achievements despite disabilities. Personal Best has changed my life, allowing me to share my personal best for the benefit of others and myself. The sky is the limit. I may not be chosen to volunteer at the 2012 Games but I have promised myself to give my best and to have fun along the way.”

Sarah M Salem, Graduate of the Personal Best Volunteering Programme

“A lot of hard work has gone into building firm partnerships with the host boroughs. Through working with Hackney I’m confident that what’s built now will produce long lasting value to local communities.”

David Higgins, Chief Executive, Olympic Delivery Authority

OnSite case study – Junior Pennant
Junior Pennant had been unemployed for six months prior to attending OnSite. OnSite helped him to get a Construction Skills Certification Scheme card and he attended a course to learn to drive a powered pick-up truck. One week later, a driving role came up on the Olympic Park and he was successful in securing the job. Junior is pleased that he was able to sign off and get his independence back.

“Hackney is changing and evolving. But, and more importantly, people’s perceptions of the borough reflect this genuine evolution. Hackney is now seen as one of the key centres for art and culture in London, if not the country. Our borough’s lead role in the Cultural Olympiad reflects this keenly. I find this epicentre of the creative arts an inspiring and exciting place to work, and I constantly draw upon the energy of the wonderfully diverse people here for inspiration and ideas.”

Mark Sealy, CEO Autograph ABP, founded in 1988 to address the lack of representation of photographers from culturally diverse backgrounds.

Involving Everyone

During the Summer of 2012, the world will come to Hackney and we will extend the hand of friendship to all of the athletes taking part with a special welcome to the hundreds of Paralympians who will be participating. We are well placed to offer a ‘home from home’ to people from all over the world, with our eclectic mix of cultures and accessible facilities.

What we said

Schools are at the heart of the 2012 Games and Hackney Council is working with local schools to make sure there are plenty of opportunities for children to use the Games to inspire learning.

We are working with local sports and community groups to offer other chances such as volunteering, and to inspire young people to take part in more sports and cultural events.

What we did

The Schools at the Heart programme developed a Games-inspired curriculum for primary schools. The Paralympic Sports Championships started in 2008, with 37 schools taking part. In 2009 they involved twice the number of students, giving children of all abilities experience of Paralympic disciplines.

The Hackney 2012 Youth Ambassadors programme has trained 24 students from our secondary schools to promote Games related issues with their peer group at school and in youth clubs, to contribute to legacy planning and speak publicly – including at an International Olympic Committee meeting.

What’s next

We will continue to develop our network of ‘link teachers’ into every school, and they will act as a conduit for the many opportunities available as they arise.

A new group of Ambassadors will be recruited each year to 2012, to add to those who are still volunteering their time. We have started a programme of one to one meetings with voluntary and community organisations to discuss their further involvement in the Games.

Destination Hackney

Hosting the Olympic and Paralympic Games in 2012 gives Hackney Council a unique opportunity to make Hackney a better place to live, work, visit and invest.

What we said

We will promote Hackney as a destination for investment and a place where visitors can enjoy our celebrated theatres, galleries, restaurants, cafes, extensive parks and green spaces.

We are working very closely with the other host boroughs on a range of areas to secure the best legacy benefits for all our residents.

What we did

Hackney’s green spaces have been awarded nine Green Flag awards, one Green Flag heritage award and one Green Pennant award. Four years ago our parks only had one award between them.

A Multi Area Agreement to tackle worklessness, improve housing and invest in the public realm across the five host boroughs has been drawn up. In the longer term, the Strategic Regeneration Framework aims to bring the quality of life in the five host boroughs up to at least the London average over the next 20 years.

What’s next

We will liaise closely with artists in the 600 studios in the Wick to promote their work by building on the success of the ‘Hackney Wicked’ festival. This festival is an opportunity to visit and support local artists.

The Multi Area Agreement will improve job prospects, housing options and the quality of the local environment and infrastructure. The regeneration framework will also plan action on health, education, crime, sport and culture.

Introduction

A RECORD-breaking fifth year of frozen Council Tax with no cuts to frontline services is the cornerstone of Hackney's budget for the coming financial year.

For the fifth successive year Hackney's part of the Council Tax will not increase, as part of the 2010/11 budget agreed at a meeting of full Council on 3 March, and which comes into effect from April.

In 2010/11 the Council will be investing £187 million into education for more than 10,000 children and young people including in primary and secondary schools and nurseries, as well as £72 million on services such as youth clubs, training for work, and care for disabled children.

A total of £66 million is to be spent on cleaner streets and better roads, involving maintenance of nearly 11,000 street lights, and a total of 296 miles of roads swept daily.

The Council will also be spending a total of £119 million on adult social care in the coming financial year, to include 640,000 hours of home care, 160 nursing home placements, and support for vulnerable young people to make the transition into adulthood.

Mayor Jules Pipe said: "Hackney Council is on the side of residents through difficult economic times. I know that the past year has been difficult for many residents due to the economic climate and I hope that by keeping the Council Tax down we can help to make a life a little easier. We are the only authority in the country to be freezing Council Tax for five years in a row, and it has been achieved alongside record investment in services."

financial watchdog, has said in a report that 'Hackney has one of the strongest balance sheets in London', and during the past five years the Council has made over £40 million in efficiency savings, funds which are being reinvested into the services that matter most to local people. These savings are the highest in London and the third highest in the country, and have come from a number of sources including improved Council Tax and Housing Rent collection rates, improved benefits processing, and improvements to working practices.

Rose Hayes, Chair of Age Concern Hackney, said: "We are naturally pleased that the Council has been able to keep a five year freeze on the level of the Council Tax, whilst finding extra money for much needed services like our Coldline project, which helps older people struggling with fuel poverty. It makes life a little easier for older people in the borough."

John Denham MP, Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, said: "Hackney's fifth Council Tax freeze in a row shows how local authorities can balance efficiency with fairness, keeping tax low, and cutting waste whilst at the same time investing in the services that matter to local people."

Residents will see no increase in their Council Tax bills this year, due to Hackney's part of the tax being kept at 2005 levels, as well as a freeze on the Greater London Authority's (GLA) element.

London-wide services such as the Metropolitan Police, public transport, and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games are paid for by the GLA's share of the Council Tax.

Some highlights

£4 million for sports and leisure

This is to go towards developing sports activity and helping to improve the health and wellbeing of residents, as well as refurbishments and improvements at Britannia and Kings Hall leisure centres. Hackney has some of the best leisure facilities around, including the Lido at London Fields, as well as Clissold Leisure Centre, the only such facility in the capital to receive an 'excellent' QUEST industry rating

£119m on adult social care

The Council provides social care for some of the borough's most vulnerable people, and this funding will help provide 640,000 hours of home care and 160 nursing home places

£11m on refuse and recycling

This will help residents recycle general household, food and garden waste through around six million recycling collections, as well as 8.5 million general waste collections

£5 million for parks

This will be for managing and maintaining 318 hectares of Hackney's 62 parks and green spaces. Hackney has more green space than any other inner London borough, and nine parks have been judged to be amongst the best in Britain after receiving Green Flag awards

£25 million in improving public safety

The Council works with the police to continue the huge drop in crime Hackney has achieved during recent years. The funding will go towards several services including paying for

27,000 camera hours of CCTV footage to help police catch offenders, as well as 3,500 building control inspections, dealing with licence applications and enforcement

£9 million for eight libraries and a community archive

Each year over 1.3 million people visit Hackney's libraries, with 36,000 visitors to Hackney Museum – this funding includes over £3million to build the new Dalston Square library, and £500,000 per year to run it

£187 million on education

This is for more than 10,000 children and young people and will include primary and secondary schools as well as nurseries

£72 million on support for young people

This includes continued funding for 12 youth clubs; care packages for 130 disabled children; and 1,300 young people helped by the Council's Youth Offending Team
